TRANSPORT IN AND OUT OF CELLS

Primary active transport, also called direct active transport, directly uses metabolic energy to transport molecules across a membrane. Substances that are transported across the cell membrane by primary active transport include metal ions, such as Na⁺, K⁺, Mg²⁺, and Ca²⁺. These charged particles require ion pumps or ion channels to cross membranes and distribute through the body.

We have seen that each type of protein consists of a precise sequence of amino acids that allows it to fold up into a particular three-dimensional shape, or conformation. But proteins are not rigid lumps of material. They can have precisely engineered moving parts whose mechanical actions are coupled to chemical events. It is this coupling of chemistry and movement that gives proteins the ...

Enterocytes, or intestinal absorptive cells, are simple columnar epithelial cells found in the small intestine. A glycocalyx surface coat contains digestive enzymes. Microvilli on the apical surface increase surface area for the digestion and transport of molecules from the intestinal lumen. The cells also have a secretory role.

Terrestrial and Palustrine Plant Communities of Pennsylvania 2nd Edition builds on Fike (1999) in that the plant community concept is based on characteristic vegetation and physiognomy; hydrology, ecological processes, and distribution are also presented.. The following presents the PNHP concept of a plant community, describes how communities were named, and identifies data sources used.

We are aware of the fact that contourites (sediments affected by alongslope bottom currents), turbidites (sediments deposited by downslope density currents) and pelagites (sediments deposited by vertical pelagic settling) simply represent extremes in a continuum of deep-sea sedimentary facies ().
